

Memorial Day 2011
BBQ at the Towers

No May gray. The wind quit blowing. The sky was blue and the birds were chirping. The grill was lit and the dogs and burgers were sizzling. It was a great day for a BBQ here at the Towers in Laguna Woods.

The patio and Crystal Room filled up fast with over one hundred and fifty hungry residents. The lunch fair included side dishes galore, potato salad, chips, fruit salad and much, much more.

At the bar it was easy to wet your whistle with two dollar Margaritas (blended and icy of course) and beer...where else could you pick up a beer or Margarita for two dollars? The complimentary fruit punch was a mix of lemon, strawberry and cranberry and boy was it refreshing!

Our residents went all out to show their true colors...RED, WHITE and BLUE! Many sported cowboy hats, boots and belt buckles befitting a rodeo champ. Between the resident's apparel and the beautiful decorations you could certainly see the patriotism and pride abounding.

Our activities department supplied the entertainment, one man band Rich McClellan and he lived up to his description playing guitar, keyboard and harmonica often all at the same time.

As the party wound down, reluctant revelers slowly left the patio, some off for a walk with a friend around the beautiful grounds to work off that second hotdog or extra helping of potato salad, some headed for a comfy couch and an afternoon nap, some stayed and chatted further into the afternoon....one thing's for sure...no one left hungry!
